

How Religion is changing in America

Powered by data obtained from the GSS, the decline of organized religion in the US is as clear as ever

From 2006-2021:
Proportion of those who believe in God decreased by 13.1%
Proportion of those who believe in a higher power rose by 3.1%

35.1%

Percent of Americans that attend a religious service every week in 1972

17.9%

Percent of Americans that attend a religious service every week in 2021

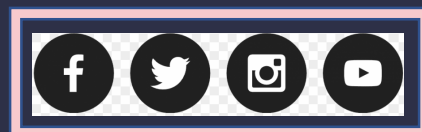

Research Questions:

1. How does the current landscape of religion in America look different compared to America 50 years ago?
2. Does the younger generation of Americans have a different relationship with religion compared to older Americans?
3. How has America's perspective on religion changed in recent years?

Conclusion:

There is no doubt more and more Americans are shying away from organized religion. Despite this fact it seems people are still holding their own set of spiritual beliefs as can be seen in the belief in higher power graph

For more information: visit
<https://gss.norc.org/>

By:
Kyle Lew